

GENERAL INDEX.

VOL. XXVIII. NEW SERIES.

Abjuration, stanzas entitled, 273, 4.

Absentees, Irish, apostrophe to, 185, 6.

Africa, southern, Thompson's travels and adventures in, 129, et seq.; the author's mode of travelling, 130: improved state of Port Elizabeth, Algoa Bay, ib.; town of Uitenhage, ib.; rash adventure of Maré, an elephant hunter, 131; Graham's town, ib.; Graaff Reinet, ib.; its population, 132; the author passes close by two lions, 132, 3; he arrives at Griqua town, and meets Mr. Melvill, 133; Mr. Moffat, a missionary, from Kuruman, brings tidings of an invasion by an unknown tribe, 134; measures adopted to repel the enemy, ib. et seq.; the author undertakes a journey of observation, 136; finds Laitakoo wholly deserted, 137, 8; describes the enemy, 138; defeat of the invaders by the Griqua horsemen, ib.; proof of the wide extension of the Caffer race and language, 138, 9; second journey of the author, 139; design of the excursion and route, ib.; deplorable state of the country, ib.; wretched fate of two female natives, ib.; distress of the party from the want of food, 139, 40; the author's account of the state of the free Hottentots north of the colony, 140; present state of the Bushmen, 141, 2; destruction of them by the colonists, 142; origin of the bitter enmity between them and the colonists, 143; the author's testimony of the benefits derived from the missions in South Africa, 145, 6; his account of the British settlement in Albany, 146; song of the wild Bushman, by Mr. Pringle, 147, 8.

Agincourt, Nicolas's history of the battle of, 543, et seq.

Aird's religious characteristics, 166, et seq.; design and execution of the work, 166; on indecision, 167, 8; vitiated taste in composition prevalent among northern writers, 169; religious phraseology at present subject to a twofold change, 170; the author's phraseology juvenile, 171; contents of the work, 172; remarks on antiquity, 173; on the responsibility of parents, 174.

Akkerkoof, a remarkable monument near Bagdad, 66.

Albany, in South Africa, British settlement at, 146.

Alexander's translation of Mirza Modeen's Shigurf, &c. or, excellent intelligence concerning Europe, 162, et seq.; the author a learned Hindoo, 162; his character of the French, 163; the Mirza's feelings on entering Oxford, ib.; his curious description of some skaters, 164; his character of the English, ib.

— Lieut., travels from India to England, 193, et seq.

Allbut's elements of useful knowledge in geography, &c. 94.

American Sketches, 83, et seq.

Amulet, the, 557, et seq.; angel visits, by Mrs. Hemans, 559; voyage round the world, by Montgomery, 560, et seq.; the missionary, by W. Howitt, 563, 4; the clouds, by the editor, 564, 5; prose contributors, 566, 7.

Anglicana Vestigia, 428, et seq.

Antinomian, the, 285, 6.

Antipathy, observations on, 173.

Apocalypse of St. John, Croly on the, 120, et seq.

Apologie der Neuern Theologie, &c. see Bretschneider's vindication, &c.

Apothecary, a country, a character by Miss Mitford, 574, 5.

Applause, human, on the love of, 212, 13.

Assyria, site of the ancient capital of, 64.

Australia, narrative of a survey of the inter-tropical and western coasts of, by Capt. King, 34, et seq.; short account of the various attempts to explore the coast of Australia, ib.; the author engaged by the British government to complete the investigation, ib.; account of his first expedition, 35; the route chosen by Capt. K., ib.; marine velocipede used by the natives of Dampier's

INDEX.

- archipelago for crossing the straits*, 35 ; their intercourse with different parties of the natives, 36 ; arrival at Sydney Cove, ib. ; route of the second voyage, ib. ; extent of the coast examined during this voyage, ib. ; the third voyage, 37 ; the vessel alarmingly injured by grounding on a sand bank, ib. ; providential escape of the vessel from being wrecked, 37, 8 ; advantageous result of the voyage, 38 ; fourth voyage of the author, in a different vessel, ib. ; curious specimens of native art in Clark's island, 38, 9 ; conflict with the natives in Hanover Bay, 39, 40 ; danger of the vessel in Buccaneer's archipelago, 41, 2 ; Capt. K. returns to England, 42.
- Australia, prosperous state of its colonies, 414.
- Babylon, description of the ruins of, 67, et seq.
- Ban-de-la-Roche, see Oberlin, Jaen Frederic.
- Barbers, the last of the*, a portrait by Miss Milford, 571, 2.
- Barnet, the battle of*, 431, 2.
- Bartsch's Peintre Graveur, 363, et seq.
- Bernard, Sophia, her noble conduct, 310.
- Bible, translation of the, into Chinese, by Dr. Morrison and by Dr. Marshman, 517, 18.
- Books, ancient, Taylor's history of the transmission of, to modern times, 531, et seq.
- Botany, ode to, 73, 4.
- Bradley's sermons, 208, et seq.
- Bretschneider's vindication of the modern theology of Lutheran Germany, &c. 389 ; the author's preliminary remarks on the accusations of Mr. Rose, 389, 90 ; his four positions that disqualify a man from giving information worthy of credit, 390 ; observations on his last position, ib. ; on the accusations of Mr. Rose, ib. ; Dr. B. on Dr. Wegscheider's system, 391 ; remarks on the scheme of mediate and immediate revelation, ib. ; on his illustration of the principles of the anti-supernaturalists, 392, 3 ; difference between religion and theology, 393, 4 ; extract from Dr. Tittman on theology, 394, 5 ; Dr. B.'s further remarks on Mr. Rose, and on the fathers of the first four centuries, 395, et seq. ; observations on his statements, 398, 9 ; he accuses Mr. Rose of a defective acquaintance with the opinions, &c. of those against whom he wrote, 400, et seq. ; the author's illustration of the state of German theology since the year 1750, 403, et seq. ; on the different directions it has taken, 403 ; the persons from whom each particular opinion has proceeded, 406 ; the acceptance which the various notions have met with, 406, et seq. ; names of eminent divines omitted to be noticed by the author, 408, 9 ; he accuses Mr. Rose of indiscretion, &c. 409, 10 ; declares him to be incapable of forming a judgement upon German theology, 410, et seq.
- Brook, the little, and the Star*, 567, et seq. ; see Literary Souvenir.
- Buckingham's travels in Mesopotamia, 55, et seq.
- Buonaparte, Napoleon, the life of, 148, et seq. ; an impartial estimate of character, &c. not easily to be made by contemporaries, 148, 9 ; Sir Walter Scott's qualifications for the office of biographer in the present case considered, 149 ; his delineation of the French monarchy, 150 ; comparison of the character of Louis XVI. and Charles I. considered, ib. ; the atrocities attending the French revolution have no parallel in the progress of the English revolution, 151 ; outrages committed on the Royal family at Versailles, ib. ; the statement objectionable, 151, 2 ; Mirabeau's celebrated apostrophe, 152 ; curious conversation between Buonaparte and an Hungarian officer, 154 ; remarks on the death of the Duke D'Enghien, 155, 6 ; general remarks on Napoleon's campaigns, 157 ; the battle of Waterloo, 158, 9 ; Napoleon's external appearance, 163, et seq.
- Burder, H. F., on the evidence of revelation arising from prophecy, 493, 4.
- Burgess's, Bishop, short catechism on the duty of conforming to the established church, 318, et seq. ; the author previously known as an abettor of coercive principles, 320 ; character of the 'short catechism,' 321 ; the new testament the only ground of the Christian's obedience, 322 ; the Bishop's definition, &c. of the church of Christ, 322, 3 ; remarks on the sequel of his definition, 323 ; the Bishop's question refers, not to the church of Christ, but to the church of England, 324 ; bishops, priests, and deacons asserted to have been appointed by the apostles to govern the church, &c., 325 ; the Bishop's statement examined, 325, et seq. ; the word bishop means overseer, 326 ; elders and bishops proved to be identical, ib. ; every pastor of a Christian church is a bishop, ib. ; a church of England bishop does not resemble a primitive bishop, ib. ; remarks on a particular part of the confirmation service, 327; description of a late confirmation, extracted from the Kent Herald, 327, 8; on the succession of the Christian ministry, 328; the Bishop's answers not consonant to Scripture, 328, 9; the mode of appointing bishops in England, 329; the bishops declared to be the judges whether a person is called of God to the ministry, 330; remarks on this point, ib.; on the civil right of publicly exercising the Christian ministry, 331, 2; the Bishop attempts to prove the duty of conforming to the established church, 333, et seq.; his reasons examined, ib.; he fears that sects holding no communion with any true church, are not parts of the Catholic church for which Christ died, 339, et seq.; strictures on the Bishop's assertions, ib.

INDEX.

 Burnett's practical hints on light and shade in painting, 506, et seq.; remarks of Sir Joshua Reynolds on the management of light and shade by the Venetian painters, 507; character of Mr. Burnett's work, 508; Rembrandt's mode of managing light, 509; Claude's mode, ib.
 Burton's testimonies of the Anti-Nicene Fathers to the divinity of Christ, 276, et seq.; observations on evidence, 277; examples of the advantages to be derived from the referential mode of inquiry, 278, 9; on the testimony of Clement and Ignatius to apostolic doctrine, 280; contrary opinions as to the creed of the church during the first three centuries, in reference to the divinity of Christ, 281; remarks of the author on Mr. Burgh's "Inquiry," &c., 281, 2; character of the present work, 282; examination of the testimony of Clemens Alexandrinus, 283, 4.
Bushman, the wild, song of, 147, 8.
Bushmen, present state of the, 141, 2; origin of the bitter enmity between them and the colonists, 142.
Byron, Lord, Howitt's stanzas on, 81.
Cassers, wide extension of their race and language, 138, 9.
 Cards, German, afford beautiful specimens of wood-cutting, 369, 70.
 —, playing, imported probably from the East, 370.
 Characteristics, religious, by Thomas Aird, 166, et seq.
 Characters, alphabetic, the Phenicians the inventors of, 512.
China, description of the great wall of, 525.
 Chinese, the colloquial language of the, 510, 11.

Christ, the divinity of, Burton's testimonies of the Anti-Nicene Fathers to, 276, et seq.
Christian, the, contemplated, by Wm. Jay, 219, et seq.
 Christianity and Mohammedanism, Martyn's controversial facts on, 255, et seq.
 — its prevalence among the Mandarins, and in the royal family of China, 528.
 Christians, native, in China, cause of the late persecutions of the, 528; cruel treatment of them, ib.
Chronology, brief, of the Australian colony, 414.
 Church, established, a short catechism on the duty of conforming to the, by Bishop Burgess, 318.
Cities, American, comparative view of, 54, et seq.
 Clarke's Vestigia Anglicana, 428, et seq.; plan of the work, 429; his account of the wandering Jew, 430.
Clergy, Protestant, in Ireland, the unpopularity of, 187.
Clouds, the, by the editor of the Amulet, 564, et seq.
Collyer, Dr., on the claim of revelation to inspiration, 495, 6.
 Composition, vitiated taste in, becoming prevalent among northern writers, 169.
 Confirmation, an account of a late, extracted from the Kent Herald, 327, 8.
 Congregations, Protestant dissenting, Hale's cursory remarks upon the present state of, 180, et seq.
Costa's, Mr. Da, remarks on the modern Neologists, 32, 3.
Court, the Persian, and king, splendour of, 203, 4.
 Croly's Apocalypse of St. John, 120, et seq.; on the causes of the failure of interpretation, 121, 2; the apocalypse stated to consist of six distinct portions, 123; differences in the present system from most former ones, ib.; the author's explanation of the four angels of the Euphrates, 124; Mr. Baxter on the same point, 125; opinions of Drs. Boothroyd and Valpy, and Mr. Irving, ib.; on the number 666, 125, 6; 'the Two Witnesses,' and 'the Little Book,' 127, 8; pious reflections of the author, ib.
Cunio, Alberico and Isabella, twins, interesting account of them, 371.
 Cunningham's two years in New South Wales, 412, et seq.; a judicious history, &c. of New South Wales, a great desideratum, 412; the author endeavours to be witty at the expense of the Evangelicals, 413; a few serious reflections addressed to him, ib.; prosperity of the Australian colonies, 414; Mr. Oxley's discoveries, 414; the Macquarrie river, ib.; brief chronology of the colony, ib.; Van Diemen's Land Bible association, 415, note; character and habits of the natives in contact with the settlements, ib.; they are most sturdy beggars, 415, 16; appearance of the colonial-born whites, 416; the two classes denominated currency and sterling, ib.

INDEX.

Death by the pendulum, as related to have been practised in the Inquisition at Madrid, 460.

De Prati's outlines of an improved system of teaching languages, 541, et seq.; Mr. Hamilton's pretensions to novelty not well-founded, ib.; the author's statement of his pretensions, 542, 3.

Der Zustand der Protestantischen Religion in Teutschland, &c., 1, et seq.

Diarbekir, its situation, population, &c., 63.

Duchesne's Essai sur les Nielles, 363, et seq.

Emancipation, Catholic, a few philosophical reasons against, 185, et seq.

Emigration, report of the select committee on, 229, et seq.; extent of the labours of the parliamentary committee, 229; low state of wages in Ireland, 230; the increase of the population of Ireland owing to its poverty, ib.; effects of the cultivation of the potato, 230, 1; system of letting and middlemen, 231; evils from the splitting of farms, ib.; remarkable instances given in evidence, 232; evils of early marriages, 232, 3; Dr. Doyle's opinion, that these early marriages are occasioned by extreme poverty, 233; the population of Ireland not excessive, in regard to the surface of the country, ib.; the value of land deteriorated by subletting, 233, 4; difficulty of the landlord to recover possession of his land at the end of the lease, 235; efforts of some gentlemen to lessen the harshness of ejection, ib.; distress of the ejected tenantry, 236; estimate of the mendicants in Ireland, ib.; the outrages in Ireland attributable to its redundant population, 237; evil consequences of those outrages in regard to cultivation, ib.; the colonies capable of sustaining a large emigration, 238, note; the ejected population the objects of the proposed measure of emigration, ib.; inquiry as to the efficiency of the plan, ib., et seq.; its expenses considered, 239, et seq.; objects of the scheme of emigration, 243; public charity not a legitimate object of government, ib.; remarks on the supposed general improvement of Ireland by this scheme, 244, 5; observations on English emigration, 245, et seq.; its operation in Kent, 246; on the poor's rate as a fund for the expenses of emigration, 247, 8; futility of the plan for exterminating juvenile delinquency, by exiling the delinquents, 248; the assertion that the unemployed labourer consumes more than he produces, examined, 248, 9; the subject of repayment considered, 250, et seq.; report of the select committee on emigration, in 1826, 229, et seq.; mendicants in Ireland, the number of, 286.

Engraving, the origin and early history of, 363, et seq.; Mr. Ottley's fac-similes, 364, 5; the art of engraving not a similar process to that of translating, 365; few persons capable of discerning the higher qualities of engraving, 366; some fine specimens of the graphic art, ib.; the Italian artist inferior to the English in talent, but superior in enthusiasm, ib.; fault of the English artist, 366, 7; cause of the value of painters' etchings by original masters, 367; mode of engraving on copper and in wood, 368; wood-carving long antecedent to engraving on copper, ib.; origin of wood-engraving in Europe unknown, 369; had existed in China many centuries before, ib.; applied to the manufacture of playing-cards in Venice, ib.; the German cards afford some beautiful specimens of wood-cutting, 369, 70; the game of cards probably imported from the east, 370; extract from Papillon's treatise on graving on wood, ib.; interesting account of the twins Alberico and Isabella Cunio, 371; their death, ib.; inquiry into the genuineness of the narrative, 372; Mr. Ottley's account of the manner of wood-engraving, 372, 3; the Italian goldsmiths the earliest who practised engraving, 373; working in niello, 373, 4; the process described, 374; the Abbé Zani discovers an impression from an engraving by M. Finiguerra, 375; the sulphurs, 376; the earliest known print, ib.; Albert Dürer the greatest of the German artists, ib.; Italian engravers, 376, 7.

Essays on literature, &c., by T. Hathaway, 69, et seq.

Euphrates, its breadth at Beer, 55; divides into many channels below the town, ib.; import of its name, 56.

Evening, an, on Pelion, 175, et seq.

INDEX.

- Eyam, the desolation of, &c., by William and Mary Howitt, 72, et seq.
- Fac-similes of scarce and curious prints, by W. Y. Otley, 363, et seq.
- Faulkner's, Sir Arthur B., rambling notes and reflections, 423, et seq.; account of a visit to Pleyel, 424, 5, and to the house of Voltaire, 425, 6; description of the marble bust of Voltaire at the Royal Institute, 426; present state of religion in France, ib.; the Salpetrière, 427, 8.
- Fincher's achievements of prayer, 538, et seq.; design of the work, 538; admirable simplicity of its plan, 539.
- Forget-me-not, 557, et seq.; a country apothecary, by Miss Mitford, 574, 5; character of Mr. Hood's contribution, 576.
- Friendship, on, 355, 6.
- Friendship's offering, 557, et seq.
- Germany, the neologism of, 1, et seq.
- Greece, anticipation of the future happiness of, 177, 8.
- Gregory's mathematics for practical men, 43, et seq.; the author's notice of three similar works, ib.; origin of the present treatise, 44; contents, 45; its character, 45, 6.
- Goldsmiths, Italian, the first who practised engraving, 373.
- Gwilt's Sciography, or examples of shadows, &c., 506, et seq.
- Halen, Don Juan Vap, narrative of his imprisonment in the Inquisition at Madrid, &c., 459, et seq.
- Hale's cursory remarks upon the present state of Protestant dissenting congregations, 180, et seq.; necessity for making efforts to increase the number of Gospel ministers, 181; on the duty of providing pastors with the comforts and conveniences of life, 182, 3; inquiry as to the mode by which dissenting ministers may be more amply remunerated, 183; the dissenting ministry has not risen in popular estimation of late years, 184.
- Hathaway's essays on the pleasures of literature, &c., 69, et seq.; view of human nature when presented with learning and piety united, 69, et seq.
- Hayes, Captain, his admirable seamanship on the coast of France, during a storm, 505, 6.
- Heber's hymns, adapted to the weekly service of the Church, 472, et seq.; authors of the hymns selected, 473; Jerusalem in ruins, ib.; hymn for Whitsunday, 474; remarks on the selection, 475; hymn on recovery from sickness, 476, 7.
- History of the Inquisition of Spain, 459, et seq.
- Hottentots, free, beyond the limits of the colony, present state of, 140.
- Hours, solitary, 272, et seq.; stanzas, entitled 'abjuration,' 273, 4; 'the broken bridge,' 274, 5; 'it is not death,' 275.
- Houses, the rival, of York and Lancaster, Emma Roberts's memoirs of, 428, et seq.
- Howitt, William and Mary, poems by, 72, et seq.; ode to botany, 73, et seq.; the pen, 76, 7; stanzas on human destiny, 77, 8; the authors members of the society of Friends, 79; specimens of the anti-quakerish character of the work, ib. et seq.; stanzas on Lord Byron, 81, 2.
- Hughes's vocabulary to the Œdipus Rex of Sophocles, &c., 467, et seq.; increasing claims of education in the present day, 468; on the best mode of obtaining them, ib.; design and execution of the present work, 469, 70; on some novel opinions respecting classical literature, 470; remarks on the two departments of education, the literary and the scientific, 471, 2.
- Human destiny, stanzas entitled, 77, 8.
- Hymns for the weekly service of the Church, by Bishop Heber, 472, et seq.
- Indecision in Religion, remarks on, 167, 8.
- India, Lieut. Alexander's travels from, to England, 193, et seq.
- Inquisition of Spain, history of the, 459, et seq.; death by the pendulum, 460; military adventures of Juan Van Halen, 461; he executes a successful manœuvre against the French in Spain, ib.; return of Ferdinand to Spain, ib.; the Inquisition resumes its activity, 462; Van Halen is arrested and ordered to be shot, ib.; the order found to be irregular, and he is made lieutenant-colonel, ib.; he engages in a conspiracy of the liberales, and is confined in the Inquisition at Murcia, ib.; seeks to obtain an interview with the King, and is removed to Madrid, ib.; account of the circumstances that passed at the interview, 463; kindness of Ferdinand, 465; character of his favourites, ib.; Van Halen is put to the torture, ib.; effects his escape from the prison, 465, 6; passes through France to England, 467; subsequent circumstances of his life, ib.
- Inspiration and revelation, distinction between them, 379, note.
- Ireland, speech of the earl of Farnham on the reformation in, 97, et seq.
- Ireland, three months in, 185, et seq.; the

INDEX.

- present work a poem, its contents, &c., 185; apostrophe to the absentee, 185, 6; unpopularity of the Protestant clergy in Ireland, 187; observations on some of his statements, 187, 8.
- Island, the Pelican, and other poems, by James Montgomery, 433, et seq.
- James's naval history of Great Britain, 603, et seq.
- Jay's Christian contemplated, 219, et seq.; observations on a certain class of objectors to the doctrines of the lectures, 219, et seq.; on the cause of the distaste for practical preaching, 222; on addressing the lower classes, 223, 4; number and subjects of the lectures, 225; remarks on domestic religion, in reference to the Church, 225, 6; objections against its practice considered, 226, 7; on the principal constituents of the heavenly state, 227, 8.
- Jerusalem in ruins, hymn on, by Bishop Heber, 476, 7.
- Jesus Christ, Michaelis on the burial and resurrection of, 377, et seq.
- Jew, the wandering, 430.
- King's, Captain, narrative of a survey of the intertropical and western coasts of Australia, 34, et seq.
- Klaproth, M. Von, his observations on the last Russian and English embassies to China, 530, 1.
- Knighthood, orders of, created by Mohammedan princes for Christians, 203, note.
- Lectures on select portions of the evidences of revelation; by various ministers of the London congregational union, 485.
- Lee's, Professor, controversial facts on Christianity and Mohammedanism, by the late Rev. Henry Martyn, 255, et seq.; schism, ecclesiastical, between the Ottomans and the Persians, 256; radical difference between the Soonees and the Persian Sheahs, ib.; the Sheah schism acquires the ascendancy in Persia, 256, 7; Sir J. Malcolm's remarks on the difference between these sects, 257; the Imams of the Soonees defamed by the Persian divines, 258, 9; striking correspondence between the Sheah and the Romanist system, 259; both the Romish and the Persian Churches have their mystics and their schoolmen, 260; controversy between Mr. Martyn and a Moollah respecting the Christian doctrine of the Trinity, 261, 2; the Sooffees divided into many sects, 263; Sir John Malcolm's account of their different sects, 264; the most celebrated of the Sooffee teachers have been famed for their knowledge, 265; poetry the essence of Sooffeism, 266; specimen of Sooffeism, 266, 7; character of Sooffeism, 267; Mr. Martyn's remarks on the abstract essence of the Deity, &c., not being an object of love, 268, 9; curious reasoning of the Moollah, 270; the Jews not justly to be charged with altering the sacred text, 271; Professor Lee's criteria for deciding in regard to a claim to a divine mission, 272.
- Light and shade in painting, Burnett's practical hints on, 506, et seq.
- Literature, religious, in France, its progress, 32.
- Llorente's history of the Inquisition of Spain, abridged, 459, et seq.; death by the pendulum, 460.
- Love, apostrophe to, 354.
- Macquarrie river, 414.
- Malte-Brun, M., his remarks on the policy of China, in regard to its language, 512, 13.
- Manumission, the petition and memorial of the planters of Demarara and Berbice, on the subject of, examined, 417, et seq.; the order in council, 417; the court of policy of Demarara refuse to comply with it, ib.; they petition his Majesty in council, ib.; plea of the memorialists for their right of property in their slaves, ib.; slaves cannot be considered as mere property, 418; Lord Bathurst on the right of slaves to the Sunday, 419; slaves have their rights, ib.; the planters' objections to the proposed plan of manumission, ib.; the plea that West India produce cannot be profitably cultivated by free labour shewn to be groundless, 420; the enfranchised population of the West India islands are subsisted by their own efforts, 420, 1.
- Mardin, the city of, its remarkable situation, 62; its population, &c., ib.
- Martyn's, the late Rev. Henry, controversial facts on Christianity and Mohammedanism, 255, et seq.
- Mathematics, Dr. Gregory's, for practical men, 43, et seq.
- Mesopotamia, Buckingham's travels in, 55, et seq.; the author sets out from Aleppo, 55; crosses the Euphrates at Beer, ib.; its breadth, ib.; its appearance below the town, ib.; etymology of its name, 56; on the names of rivers in ancient times, ib.; description of the Tigris, ib.; Orfah, the Roman Edessa, ib.; origin of its present name, 57; the castle described, 57; its population, language, &c., 58; description of the Yezedies, ib., et seq.; their religious opinions, manners, &c. 59, et seq.; Mardin, its remarkable situation, 62; population, ib.; Diarbekir, 63; its situation, population, &c., ib.; the town of Nisibeen, the ancient Nisibis, 64; Mousul, ib.; site of the ancient capital of Assyria, ib., et seq.; Arbeel, 66; monument of Akkerkoof, ib.; description of the ruins of Babylon, 67, et seq.

INDEX.

 Michaelis on the burial and resurrection of Jesus Christ, 377, et seq.; the testimony of the resurrection, 377; observations on this statement, 377, 8; on the inspiration of the evangelists, 378; distinction between inspiration and revelation, 379, note; cases of apparent contradiction in the history of the resurrection, 380; the author's remarks on the first apparent contradiction, 380, et seq.; observations on this apparent difficulty, 383; the second supposed contradiction examined, 384, et seq.; explanation of Dr. Townson, 385; opinion of Dr. Lardner, 386; remarks of the author on the Old Testament canon, 387.
 Miracles, on the evidence arising from them, 490, et seq.
 Mission, divine, Professor Lee's criteria for deciding in respect to a claim to, 272.
 — the Russian, through Mongolia to China, Timkowski's travels of, &c., 510, et seq.
 Missionary, the, by W. Howitt, 563, 4.
 Missions in the South Seas and Sandwich Islands, Orme's defence of the, 477, et seq.
 Modeen's, Mirza Itesa, Shigurf Namah-i-Velaet, see Alexander's translation of Shigurf, &c.
 Montgomery's Pelican Island, and other poems, 433, et seq.; circumstance that originated the poem, 433; the present poem adapted to give enjoyment to him only who is a poet in feeling, 434, 5; the imaginary narrator of the poem, 436; a breeze plays upon the waters, 437; the first appearance of life, 437, 8; formation of the Coral island, the destined abode of the Pelicans, 439, et seq.; the production of birds, 442, 3; introduction of the Pelicans, 444; the first brood, ib.; their nursery, 447; the resting place of their dead, 447, 8; man appears in the creation, 449, 50; moral of the poem, 451; conclusion of the poem, and pledge of the author to complete the parable, 452, et seq.; questions and answers, 454, 5; on planting a tulip-root, 455, 6; extract from Blackwood's magazine, on Mr. Montgomery, as a religious poet, 457, 8.

 Mousul, its present appearance, population, &c., 64.
 Narrative of Don Juan Van Halen's imprisonment in the dungeons of the Inquisition at Madrid, &c., 459, et seq.
 Naval history of Great Britain, by W. James, 503, et seq.; estimate of the present work, 504; admirable seamanship of Captain Hayes, during a storm on the coast of France, 505, 6.
 Negro, generous conduct of one, 87, 8.
 Neologism, the German, 1, et seq.; the arguments in defence of Christianity the same at all periods of time, 1; outline of the scheme of infidelity in Protestant Germany, &c., 2; denominations of the new sects, 3; incongruity of the Neological scheme with acknowledged facts, ib.; the most celebrated supporters of the system, 4; proofs from their writings that the opinions entertained by the apostles, are the great doctrines of religion, held by all the orthodox churches, ib.; channels through which the opinions of this school have become known in England, 5; Mr. Rose's discourses on the state of Protestantism in Germany, ib.; remarks on his work by the German translator, 6; strictures on Mr. R.'s proposed remedy, 6, et seq.; four specific causes of the present evil, 8; the first cause, the attempt to make men disciples of Christ, by ecclesiastical mandates, &c., ib.; admirable remarks of Castellio on this subject, 9; the second source of the evil, the spirit, &c. of a state religion, 10; remarks on Mr. Rose's disapprobation of Spener's 'grand position,' ib.; the third source, the separation of a devout spirit from theological discussions, &c., 11; Michaelis subject to this accusation, ib.; the fourth cause, the intolerance of the Protestant states of Germany, 12; extract from the Darmstadt Ecclesiastical Gazette, on the persecuting spirit of the anti-evangelical party, 13, 14; the author recommends domestic Piety as a counteraction, 14; excellent remarks of the French editor, 14, 15; Mr. R.'s sketch of the radical principles and character of the Anti-Christian party, 15; strictures on his observations, 17; the Neologistic theory rests on false and dangerous notions concerning the inspiration of the scriptures, 18; statement of a more excellent way to cure the evil, than Mr. R.'s mode by 'sub

INDEX.

- scription to declarations of faith, &c., 18, 19; Ernesti on the teaching of the Holy Spirit, 20; remarks on Mr. R.'s assertions, &c. by the German translator, 21, 2; curious article from the Die Allgemeine Zeitung, 22; further remarks of the German translator on Mr. R.'s statements, 23, 4; naked avowal of Deism, 24; the infidelity of the Protestant clergymen has driven many into Papal communion, 26; high claims of the translator for the existence of the present form of religion in Germany, 27, 8; Lessing's high admiration of the orthodox faith, 28; origin of M. Stapfer's reflections, &c., 29; character of M. Stapfer, ib.; analysis of his dissertation, ib.; his account of the opponents of the modern German school, 30, 1; he thinks there is a decided and widely spreading change among the German theologians, 31; progress of religious literature in France, 32; extract from a Dutch pamphlet, by a converted Jew, on the modern Neologists, 32, 3.
- New South Wales, Cunningham's two years in, 412, et seq.
- Nicolas's history of the battle of Agincourt, &c., 543, et seq.; character and consequence of the battle of Agincourt, 543, 4; materials of the present work, 544; the battle described, 544, 5.
- Niellen, Essai sur les; by Duchesne the elder, 363, et seq.
- Niello, working in, the process described, 374.
- Noel's sermons, 208, et seq.; character of the author's parochial discourses, 208; on the doctrine of the Trinity, 209, et seq.; the love of human applause, 212, 13; on the spirit of proselytism, 214, 15; appeal to the enemies of evangelical truth, 215, 16.
- Notes and reflections, rambling, by Sir A. B. Faulkner, 423, et seq.
- Notice sur Jean Frederic Oberlin, Pasteur de Waldbach, 97.
- Oberlin, Jean Frederic, notice sur, 289, et seq.; situation of the Ban-de-la-Roche, 290; height of the Hautchamp, ib.; village of Waldbach, ib.; general description of the canton, 291; the inhabitants Lutherans, ib.; account of M. Stouber, the former pastor, 292; he causes the children to be taught to read, ib.; procures bibles for the peasants and their children, ib.; they are sought after by the Roman Catholics of the neighbouring districts, ib.; opposition of the priests, 292, 3; removal of M. Stouber to Strasbourg, 293; sketch of the early life of M. Oberlin, ib.; he succeeds M. Stouber at the Ban-de-la-Roche, 294; plot formed against his life, ib.; his firm conduct on becoming acquainted with it, 294, 5; he prevails on the peasants to open a road and build a bridge, 295; detail of the difficulties encountered, 296, 7; introduces an improved mode of cultivating the potato, 297; forms an agricultural society, ib.; encourages knitting, spinning, &c., 298; builds a school, 299; his care of the religious instruction of his parishioners, 300; finds amusements for the children, 301; amicably arranges an old contest with the seigneurs of the district, 302; remarkable proof of his influence over his flock, 302, 3; he establishes a dispensary, 304; death of his wife, 304, 5; his reflections on his loss, 305; his striking illustration of the benefits of affliction, 306; his affectionate mode of addressing his people, 307; conversation between an English traveller and the driver of a car, respecting M. Oberlin, 307, 8; his description of the women, their dress, dialect, &c., 309; noble disinterestedness of Sophia Bernard, 310; M. Oberlin's labours for the Bible Society, 312; mode of collecting money, 313; account of his last illness, 315; his funeral, 315, 16; religious tenets, 317; extract from his address to his parishioners read at his funeral, 317, 18.
- Offering, Friendship's, 557, et seq.; principal contributors, 576; Palmodia, ib. et seq.
- Orfah, the Roman Edessa, 56; origin of its present name, ib.; its castle, ib.; population, language, &c., 58.
- Orme's defence of the missions in the South Seas and the Sandwich Islands, &c., 477, et seq.; attack of Christian missions in the Quarterly Review, 477, 8; forged letter purporting to be written by Boki, a chief of the Sandwich Islands, 478; letter from Mr. Ellis to the editor, showing Boki's letter to be spurious, 478, 9; disingenuous conduct of the editor, 479; testimony of the prudent conduct of the missionaries, ib.; Mr. Orme's manly appeal to the editor of the Quarterly, 480, et seq.; further proof of the spuriousness of the letter said to have been written by Boki, 482.
- memoirs, &c. of John Urquhart, 546, et seq.; Dr. Chatmers's account of Mr. Urquhart, 546; on the doctrine of a gradation of rewards and punishments, 547, et seq.; extracts from Mr. Ur-quhart's letter relative to missionary subjects, 551, et seq.; remarks on the early death of persons eminently pious, 556; on the decay of religious fervour in some who live to old age, ib.

INDEX.

Orme on the importance of a familiar acquaintance with all the branches of Christian evidence, 487, et seq.
Outley's collection of fac-similes of scarce and curious prints, 363, et seq.
 inquiry into the early history of engraving upon copper and in wood, 363, et seq.
Oxley, Mr., his discoveries in Australia, 414.
Palinogenesia, the world to come, 344, et seq.; subject of the poem, 345; the reputed author, ib.
Palinodia, 576, et seq.
Parents, on the responsibility of, 174.
Peintre graveur, by Adam Bartsch, 363, et seq.
Pelion, an evening on; a poem, 175, et seq.; the time of the poem, 175; call to arms, 175, 6; the invocation, 177, 8; anticipation of the future happiness of Greece, 178, 9.
Pendulum, death by the, as stated to have been practised in the dungeons of the Spanish inquisition, 460.
Pen, the, stanza on, 76, 7.
Persia, travels in, 193, et seq.; general interest attaching to the eastern hemisphere, 194; the oriental system of government not fairly chargeable with all the evils attributed to it, 195; Captain Fraser's character of the Persians, 196; Sir John Malcolm's estimate of them, 197; general remarks on the Persians, 198, 9; they do not occupy the lowest rank in the scale of political freedom, ib.; no hope of a change in the Persian system of despotism, 199; the melioration of the social character must precede a change in the system of government, 200; presentation of Col. Kinnier at the Persian court, 202, et seq.; orders of knighthood created by Mohammedan princes for Christians, 203, note; splendour of the Persian monarch's appearance, ib.; Captain Malcolm's description of the Persian king's dress at an audience in 1800, 204, 5; curious incident relating to the king's giant, 205; the king inquires of Sir J. Malcolm respecting the English government, 205, 6; he is deficient in personal courage, 206; Lieut. Alexander's character of him, 206, 7; the heir apparent, 207; affecting anecdote of one of the young princes, ib.

Phraseology, religious, remarks on, 170.
Places, enumeration of, most famous for the transcription of books, 533.
Planters, petition and memorial of the, in Demarara and Berbice, on the subject of manumission examined, 417, et seq.
Playing-cards, Singer's Researches into the history of, 363, et seq.
Pleyel, Sir A. B. Faulkner's account of a visit to, 424, 5.
 Poetry, satirical, objections to it, 47.
Pollock's course of time, 344, et seq.; introductory conversation between two celestial beings and a stranger, 346; subject of the second book, 348; the third book, 349; extract, ib.; the fourth book, the poet, 351, et seq.; apostrophe to love, 354; on friendship, 355, 6; the seventh book, 356; the end of time, ib.; the resurrection, 357; the sea gives up its dead, 358, 9; separation of the good and the bad, 359; the last book, 360; the conclusion, ib.; general character of the poem, 361, 2; notice of the author's death, 362.
Prayer, Fincher's achievements of, 538, et seq.
 Reasons, a few philosophical, against catholic emancipation, 185, et seq.
Redford's Pastor's Sketch-book, 284, et seq.; design and contents of the work, 285; the Antinomian, 285, 6.
 Reformation, on the, in Ireland, 97, et seq.; the growth of popery in Ireland has been greatly promoted by the Protestant church, 98; advantage gained by the Irish clergy by the decay of Protestantism, 99; the tithes better paid by Catholic than by Protestant parishioners, ib.; the Irish clergy too rich to attend closely to their duty, 100; evil occasioned by the enlargement of the parishes, ib.; consequences of the great improvement in Ireland, under Mr. Grattan's constitution, 101; the increase of tillage tended to impoverish the country, ib.; absenteeism, ib.; effects of the union, ib.; affluence of the Protestant clergy, 102; their congregations join the Romish congregations, ib.; remedy for the evil, ib.; conduct to be adopted by the clergy, ib.; improvement within the church of Ireland, 103; measures adopted by three different classes of the community, 104; double system of education, ib.; different societies instituted, ib.; the educationists opposed by the Romish clergy, 105; the laity taught to read the Scriptures, 106; origin of the religious debates, &c., ib.; attempts of the Romish clergy to put down the schools, 107; la-

INDEX.

- hours of the readers, 107, 8; persecuting conduct of a priest of Cavan, 109; three schoolmasters conform to the Protestant religion, 110; further conversions, with a public recantation, 111; Lord Farnham's kindness misrepresented by the Romish priests, 112; circumstances favourable to the reformation in Cavan, 113; reformation in Sligo, 114; in Galway, &c., ib.; remarkable occurrences in Limerick, 115; firm conduct of Mr. Murray, 116; inquiry in respect to the best mode of bringing the Irish Catholics over to the reformed religion, 117.
- Religion and theology, difference between them, 393, 4.
- Religion, domestic, 225, 6; objections against its practice considered, 226, 7.
- Religion, the Protestant, Rose's present state of, in Germany, 1, et seq.
- Remembrancer, Christian and literary, or, The Amulet, 557, et seq.
- Remusat, M., his critique on the Chinese version of St. Mark's gospel, 520, 1; on the two versions of the whole bible, by Dr. Morrison, and Dr. Marshman, 521; extract from his retrospect of the first ten years of the Protestant mission to China, 521, 2.
- Resolutions of the Reformation Society, 97, et seq.
- Resurrection, the, 357; the sea gave up its dead, 358, 9.
- Revelation, lectures on select portions of the evidence of, 485, et seq.; origin of the association of ministers and churches of the congregational order, 485, 6; number and subjects of the lectures, 487; Mr. Orme on the importance of a familiar acquaintance with all the branches of Christian evidence, 487, et seq.; remarks on miracles, and the evidence arising from them, 490, et seq.; Mr. Burder, on the evidence of revelation arising from prophecy, 493, 4; Remarks on Dr. Collyer's estimate of Jacob Bryant, 494; Dr. C.'s illustration of his second test of the claim of revelation to inspiration, 495, 6; Walford on the character of Christ, 496, et seq.; on the efficacy of fervent prayer, 499; Mr. Reed on the evidence of revelation deducible from the success of the gospel, 500; the preacher's introduction of his argument, ib.; summary of the argument, 501, 2; Mr. Fletcher on the doctrine of transubstantiation, as not resting on the same ground as the doctrine of the Trinity, 502, 3.
- Review, Quarterly, its attack on Christian missions. See Orme's defence, &c.
- Roberts's, Emma, memoirs of the rival
- houses of York and Lancaster, &c., 428, et seq.; difficulty of the author's task, 431; battle of Burnet, 431, 2.
- Rose, the Rev. J. H., Dr. Bretschneider's vindication of the modern theology of Lutheran Germany against the accusations of, 389, et seq.
- Salpetrière, at Paris, description of it, 427, 8.
- Sciography, or Examples of Shadows, by J. Gwilt, 506, et seq.
- Scott's, Sir Walter, life of Napoleon Buonaparte, 148, et seq.
- Sermons, by the hon. Gerard Noel, 208, et seq.
- parochial, by the rev. C. Bradley, 208, et seq.; on the destination of the soul, 217, 18.
- Shoberl's Forget-me-not, 557, et seq.
- Sickness, hymn on recovery from, by Bishop Heber, 476, 7.
- Singer's researches into the history of playing cards, 363, et seq.
- Skaiters, curious description of some, by a learned Hindoo, in a visit to Scotland, 163.
- Sketch Book, Redford's Pastor's, 284, et seq.
- Sketches, American, 83, et seq.; merits of Washington Irving's writings, 83; comparative view of American cities, 84, et seq.; wretched condition of the slaves in Carolina, 87; generous conduct of a negro, 87, 8; the author satirizes the South Carolina slave act, 88, et seq.
- Sketches of Persia, 193, et seq.
- Slaves in Carolina, their wretched condition, 87.
- Solitary hours, 272, et seq.
- Society, reformation, resolutions of the, 97, et seq.
- Sooflees, their different sects, 263.
- Soonees, and Sheahs, radical difference between them, 256.
- Sophocles, the Oedipus Rex of, Hughes's vocabulary to, 467, et seq.
- Soul, the, on the destination of, 217, 18.
- Souvenir, the literary, 557, et seq.; contributors, 567; extract from the 'little brook and the star', 567, et seq.; Psyche barne by zephyrs to the island of pleasure, 570, 1; the last of the barbers, a portrait, by Miss Milford, 571, 2; stanzas on seeing flags hanging in a country church, by A. A. Watts, 573, 4.
- Spain, Llorente's History of the Inquisition of, abridged, 459, et seq.
- Stanzas on seeing flags hanging in a country church, by A. A. Watts, 573, 4.
- Stapfer's M. Reflexions suggérées par l'annonce du Concours qui doit s'ouvrir, pour la nomination de Deux Professeurs à la Faculté de Théologie Protestante de l'Académie de Montauban, 1, et seq.

INDEX.

State, the heavenly, on the principal constituents of, 227, 8.

Staunton, Sir George, his testimony to the qualifications of Dr. Morrison, as a translator into the Chinese language, 519.

Stouber, M., Pastor of Waldbach. See Oberlin, &c.

Taylor's history of the transmission of ancient books to modern times, 531, et seq.; the subject includes the whole system of historical evidence, 531; Christianity demands the same assent that is yielded to the same proof in all other cases, 531, 2; enumeration of places most famous for the transcription of books, 533; the prevalent opinion respecting the dark ages incorrect, 534; learning was never extinct, ib.; the remains of Egyptian art exhibit the peculiar despotism of that country, 535, et seq.

Teaching, De Prati's outlines of an improved system of, 541, et seq.

Theology, German, Dr. Bretschneider's illustration of, since the year 1750, 403, et seq.

Thompson's travels and adventures in South Africa, 129, et seq.

Three months in Ireland, 185, et seq.

Tigris, description of the, 56.

Time, Pollock's course of, a poem, 344, et seq.

Timkowski's travels of the Russian mission through Mongolia to China, &c., 510, et seq.; colloquial language of the Chinese, 510, 11; on the invention of alphabetic characters, 511; it is assigned by tradition to the Phenicians, 512; remarks of M. Malte Brun, on the policy of China, in regard to its language, 512, 13; Dr. Morrison's early opinion of the Chinese language, 513; disadvantageous nature of the language, 514; difficulty of transfusing Christian ideas, &c. into the Chinese language, 514, 15; unsuccessful attempt of the Romish missionaries to convey European knowledge through the Chinese language, 515; a harmony of the gospels, in Chinese, in the British Museum, ib.; attack of the Quarterly Review on the Chinese translations, 516; Dr. Morrison's translation of the Bible into Chinese, 517; translation by Dr. Marshman, 517, 18; Sir George Staunton's translations from the Chinese, 519; his testimony to Dr. Morrison's qualifications, as a Chinese scholar, 520; critique of M. Remusat on the Chinese version of St. Mark's gospel, 520, 1; his remarks on the two versions of the whole Bible, by Dr. Morrison, and Dr. Marshman, 521; extract from his retrospect of the first ten years of the Protestant mission to China, 521, 2; religious and scientific mission of the Russians at Peking, 523; the article of the treaty for its establishment, 524; M. Timkowski, appointed to conduct a new mission of relief to Peking, ib.; his route, and the distance travelled, 524, 5; description of the great wall, 525; Chinese and Russian dictionary, ib.; M. Von Klaproth's ambiguous notice of Dr. Morrison's dictionary, 526; Roman Catholic bishop of Peking appointed by the Emperor of Brazil, 526; the Chinese ignorant of astronomy, 526, 7; letter to the Greco-Russian archimandrite, indicative of the situation of the Portuguese missionaries, 527, 8; cause of the late persecution of the native Christians in China, 528; prevalence of Christianity among the mandarins, and the members of the royal family, ib.; cruel treatment of the Christians, ib.; M. Von Klaproth's observations on the last Russian and English embassies to China, 530, 1.

Trinity, the, remarks on the doctrine of, 209, et seq.

Urquhart, John, Orme's memoirs of, including letters and select remains, 546, et seq.

Van Diemen's Land Bible association, 415, note.

Vice, the reigning, 46, et seq.; objections against satirical poetry, 47; a pair of portraits, 49, 50; self-love, the character of Rousseau, 50; satire on France and England, ib. et seq.; remarks on the author's representations, &c., 53.

Visits, annual, by Mrs. Hemans, 559, 60.

Voltaire, description of his house, 425, 6; and of his bust at the Royal Institute, 426.

Walford on the efficacy of fervent prayer, 499.

Watts's Literary Souvenir, 557, et seq.

Wegscheider's, Dr., rationalist system, remarks on, by Dr. Bretschneider, 291.

Whitsunday, hymn for, 474.

Wood-engraving. See Engraving.

World to come, the, or Palingenesia, 344.

World, voyage round the, by J. Montgomery, 560, et seq.

Wreath, the Winter's, 557, et seq.; the contributions decidedly moral and religious, 578; principal contributors, ib.

Yezedies, account of them, 58, et seq.

